Obsequies to Kalakaua.
Special to the GAZETTE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 21.—The Board of Supervisors held a meeting to-day for the purpose of making arrangements for the funeral of King Kalakaua to-morrow. Mayor Sanderson presided.

Supervisor Burling was chosen as a committee of one to arrange for the church services, and Supervisors Jackson and Curtis were appointed a committee on carriages, with power to secure as many carriages as may be needed.

The form of invitations to attend the funeral have been decided upon and they will be sent to the State, Federal and municipal officers, representatives of the city Boards of Trade, the several associations and the Knight Templars.

Brigadier-General Cutting has issued orders for all troops of the Second Brigade, National Guard of California, except the Fifth Infantry regiment, to participate in the obsequies.

It is understood there will be twelve acting pall-bearers and twelve honorary pall-bearers. Among the gentlemen named as such are ex-Governor Perkins, ex-Governor Burnett, ex-Mayor Pond, T. H. Goodman, J. E. Moses of the Masonic Order, ex-Senator Williams, Claus Spreckles and Colonel Fred Crocker.

Before the remains of the King were taken to the mortuary chapel of Trinity Church this afternoon the casket containing them was removed from the apartments which the King had occupied to the reception room of the Palace Hotel, where a black catafalque had been prepared to receive it. Here gathered the small party which came with the King from Honolulu. General Gibbon and Admiral Brown were represented by members of their staff.

It had been previously arranged that no services should be held on this occasion, but that the meeting should be one of personal respect to the memory of the late King and that the casket should be taken to Trinity Chapel without military escort.

Many citizens assembled during the forenoon at the Palace Hotel and at Trinity Church and watched with interest all the arrangements for the funeral.

General Gibbon has been agreed upon as Grand Marshal of the funeral parade to-morrow.

Strike on the Erie.
By Associated Press.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—General Manager Tucker of the Chicago and Erie road admitted this morning that the road was practically tied up by a strike of train dispatchers. The only train that went out this morning was the mail for Columbus, Ohio. Outside of the New York train, and one or two freight trains every thing is tied up on this division of the road, extending to Salamanca, N. Y.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—A special dispatch to the News from Fort Wayne, Ind., says the train dispatchers and conductors' strike on the Chicago & Erie road has tied up the road at that point, and only passenger trains are moving.

BUFFALO, Jan. 21.—The superintendent of the Erie road in this city, said nothing was known of the strike reported from Chicago as extending to Salamanca. He said the strike was not likely to affect the main line from Erie east of Salamanca, or between Buffalo and New York.

TERRE HAUTE (Ind.), Jan. 21.—Grand Master Sargent of the Brotherhood of Firemen said this afternoon that he had given no order for a strike of firemen on the Chicago & Erie Railroad.

MARION (Ohio), Jan. 21.—There is not a freight train moving on the Chicago and Erie railroad between Chicago and Marion. The engineers at Marion are ready to go out. Their sympathy is with the strikers, as the whole trouble seems to be a dislike of Superintendent Merrill. The railroad, in anticipation of trouble has made arrangements with the Pennsylvania and P. C. C. and St. Louis, to handle all passenger and perishable business east and west.

Congressional Matters.

By Associated Press.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—In the Senate, as soon as the journal of yesterday was read, Gorman moved to correct it by striking out the words stating that Aldrich's motion yesterday to proceed to the consideration of the resolution as to closure was determined in the affirmative. He asserted that a ballot occurred and the vote was never announced. He read from the record to sustain his position and expressed his belief that the Senate would not permit the journal to stand, which declares a falsehood.

The Senate has not yet taken a vote on Gorman's motion to correct the journal. The motion was taken advantage of for a general discussion of the election bill, and Eustis has been occupied for the last hour in criticizing and condemning it.

HOUSE.

When the reading of the journal was concluded this morning Mills objected to its approval and stated that he desired to debate the question. In a moment McKinley was on his feet with a demand for the previous question on the approval of the journal, and he was recognized by the Speaker. Then followed a scene of excitement almost rivaling that of yesterday. Messrs. Bland, Rogers and Mills excoriated the Speaker, but the latter, in a calm manner, stated that he administered the rules as he understood them (and as sustained by the House) and that he would continue to administer them as long as he retained the position to which he was elected by the House.

Kerr of Iowa added somewhat to the confusion by a criticism of the report of Mills' remarks as published in the Record to-day, asserting that it did not coincide with the report in the public press.

Mills excitedly demanded to know whether the gentleman accused him of having mutilated the records, but Kerr disclaimed any such intention. The tumult was quelled by the roll-call on the approval of the journal.

The previous question was ordered and Mills claimed the floor, and his claim was recognized by the Speaker. Thereupon Mills yielded the floor to Bland, who said he understood a resolution to be reported from the Committee on Rules to limit debate upon the appropriation bill. He wished to offer to the resolution an amendment. That amendment was that a certain day should be fixed for the consideration of the Senate silver bill.

The Speaker said the pending question was upon the approval of the journal.

Bland—"I suppose the Speaker intends to throttle this bill either in the committee or in the House." (Cheers from the Democratic side.)

Bland then read his proposed substitute, making the free coinage silver bill the continual order from and after January 27th. He should, he said, insist upon that motion until the 4th of March.

Another wave of excitement has just passed over the House; the Speaker, Mills and McKinley were the principal agitators, the latter declaring with emphasis that if necessary the House would stay in session until noon on the 4th of March in order to pass the bill which would give every citizen of this land his right to a free ballot and a fair count.

Boruck Denies It.

Special to the GAZETTE.]

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Jan. 21.—Private Secretary Boruck in a communication to the Bee regarding the criticisms of Governor Waterman for his pardon of several convicts, denies that any money was ever paid into the Governor's office for such pardons, but that they were granted at the request of prominent and influential persons, whose names he gives. He recommends that in the future the Governor be not required to exercise the sole power of the granting of pardons.

Canada Excited.

By Associated Press.]

TORONTO (Ont.), Jan. 21.—A special dispatch to the Globe from Ottawa says there seems to be some serious or important question occupying the attention of the Cabinet just now. The Ministers have been called together every day for five consecutive days, each sitting being a prolonged one. It is reported that Sir John McDonald intends to dissolve the Parliament at once and appeal to the people on the reciprocity question.

Minister Phelps Sends Lymph.

By Associated Press.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—A package was received from William Walter Phelps, United States Minister to Germany containing five vials of Koch's lymph, and the President distributed them as follows: Two vials to Surgeon-General Hamilton of the marine hospital service in Washington, and one vial each to polio clinic hospital of Chicago, charity hospital, New Orleans and city hospital of Indianapolis.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 21.—The steamship Australia arrived this morning in a little over six days from Honolulu. The Hawaiian papers of the 14th inst express gratification at the attentions which have been shown King Kalakaua in California. No intimation appears to have reached the island that his majesty was enjoying life other than his usual health. Several Hawaiian residents of Samoa returned to Honolulu on the steamship Zealandia on the 10th inst, King Malietoa having issued a proclamation for all Hawaiians to leave Samoa. Others are expected to return to Honolulu before long. The United States steamship Mohican and H. B. M. S. Nymph are still at Honolulu.

Winter Loss in France.

By Cable and Associated Press.]

PARIS, Jan. 21.—It is estimated that fifty thousand persons were thrown out of employment by the severe winter weather, and the total loss to France in wages, stoppage of trade and blighting of crops will probably reach 50,000,000 francs. All hospitals and infirmaries are crowded. The Administration placed the dead wood in the State forests at the disposal of the poor.

Governor Colcord's Message.

The GAZETTE is in receipt of Governor Colcord's inaugural message. The Chief Magistrate calls legislative attention to the fact that some uniform method of assessing property throughout the State is absolutely necessary. He says: "At present the amount required for State purposes is ninety cents on each one hundred dollars. Whereas, if all the property of the State could be assessed at seventy per cent. of its ACTUAL cash value the requirements for State purposes would not exceed fifty-five cents on each one hundred dollars, and it would work no hardship on the taxpayer. On the contrary, it would be a benefit to every property holder in the State."

He earnestly recommends a State Board of Equalization, to be composed of any three State officers the Legislature may see fit to appoint. He urges upon the Legislature the necessity of passing some needed amendments to the constitution, "for," he says, "in the event of a Constitutional Convention being convoked and its work falling of adoption by the people, then the amendments will in due time become operative with a great saving of time."

Touching upon the subject of immigration and irrigation, he says:

"The Board of Trade has performed a valuable service for the State in advertising its many advantages and varied resources. Its aim has been to encourage immigration and promote individual development. Reliable information to this end has been disseminated throughout the country and the results of its labor are promising. It is with pride that I notice the need of such an institution is being recognized and is receiving the support of Nevada's best citizens. State and county officials are earnestly requested to assist the Board when opportunity offers in obtaining authoritative statistics, thereby aiding the good work."

He says he trusts the Legislature will not fail to pass the Australian ballot system or adopt some other equally good measure to protect the purity of the ballot. He recommends the State to make an appropriation for the World's Columbian Exposition in keeping with our financial condition. He says let us make a practical manifestation of our varied resources. On the subject of reapportionment he says:

"As a new census has just been completed the advisability of a reapportionment of the State members of the Legislature is with you. There has been a falling off in the State's population, and this will necessitate a reduction in our legislative representation. In the interest of economy and retrenchment such a lessening would meet with the warm indorsement of the people."

Taking the message as a whole, and it is straightforward and manly, and is an indication of what kind of a man the people of Nevada have selected for its chief magistrate.

AS LONG as the State Prison is located where it is at present there is no hope of the institution being a lesser burden on the taxpayers, but if it was located somewhere in this State on land that could be farmed the prisoners would be kept busy, and at least raise what they consume. It is a heavy tax on the people at best, and while the cost will vary under the different administrations, it is neither just nor fair to point out one administration as being very economical and another extravagant. The question of keeping the place up cuts no small figure in the cost of maintaining the institution.

While Governor Bell's administration was no doubt good, it is a well-known fact that he made no repairs, bought no bedding and ran the institution for just what it cost to feed and guard the prisoners, and in that way made the cost per diem seem very low; while, on the other hand, when McCullough took charge the Board of Prison Commissioners ordered him to buy $600 worth of blankets, put a new roof on the building and make other substantial improvements which added to the cost of maintenance makes his administration appear more expensive than Governor Bell's. When the truth is, had Governor Bell been called upon to supply the place with blankets and make the necessary improvements to the building, it would have added very materially to the cost of his showing. And, again, one hundred and twenty-five prisoners can be kept at a less sum per diem than ninety-three can, for it takes the same force to guard ninety-three that it does to guard one hundred and twenty-five.

We think if the State Prison Committee investigate the subject it will find that, everything considered, Warden McCullough's administration has been as economical as any of his predecessors.

FIGHTING FOR PRINCIPLE.

Hundreds of Dollars Spent in Litigation Over a Dollar-and-a-Half Pig.

Two or three lawyers were talking of old lawsuits the other day, when one of the oldest members of the Indianapolis bar remarked to a Journal reporter: "I remember the Perry township pig case that took up a good part of one term of court, having come up through a justice's office. The case was tried, I believe, by Governor Wallace, father of our postmaster, and there were at least two firms of lawyers on each side. Sims Colley and Thomas Walpole were in the case, and so, far as Mr. Colley was concerned, he was then in the full power of his renown. The case gave him full opportunity for the display of his picturesque genius, and the drolleries he infused into it long furnished matter of laughter for the bar. Mr. Colley, however, no matter how absurdly droll he might become, never lost sight of the interests of his client, and certainly never lost sight of his own in the shape of as fat a fee as it was possible to obtain."

"The question was about the identity of a pig," continued the lawyer. "The witnesses on one side swore it was a pig in a barnyard, and had never been out until it had been put into a pen, from which it was taken to be slaughtered. The witnesses on the other side swore that they had known it from the time it was a sucking pig. The great point was the proof of an earmark. One claimant, sustained by one set of witnesses, said he marked an ear of the shot with his pocket-knife, and the cut was explained at great length to the jury. The other claimant said the mark on the ear of his shot was torn by the teeth of a dog. It was at this stage of the testimony that a sensational feature was introduced. One witness, having brought his testimony to an exciting point, added a climax by pulling from his pocket a pickled pig's ear, which he declared to be the ear of the shot in question. This created a great uproar in the courtroom, as the effect of this pictorial testimony upon the jury could not be measured. The witness with the ear was, however, measurably discredited, and the case went on. Medical experts were called in to testify as to what the difference in appearance would be between a shot's ear cut with a knife and one torn by the teeth of a dog. The experts did not agree and the jury disagreed, and another trial was held, the second jury disagreeing as the first had done. Charges of perjury were made on each side and a number of assault and battery cases grew out of it. The costs of litigation were between four hundred and five hundred dollars on each side."

"What was the shot worth?"

"About one dollar and fifty cents, but the litigants were fighting for principle."

RECREATION FOR WOMEN.

How the Ladies of London Take Outdoor Exercise.

The prominent place which women have suddenly taken for themselves in all forms of healthy outdoor exercise is of such recent growth that it has not yet had time to form itself into clubs and associations. We in London, says the Times of that city, have not yet seen women able to form coteries and "ladies' luncheons," as the sex is said to do in New York and Boston. Into which no intrusive male foot may enter. Whatever they may do across the Atlantic, it is certain that the fair Yankee visitor does not here show such aggressive femininity, and is glad enough to take her pleasure in company with a well-bred man when the man is English! No form of recreation, to a well-bred English woman, can of course compare with riding. True, in London that is only to be obtained in the Row, but under no circumstances does a well-bred girl look more fascinating than when "turned out" for the midday ride.

Time was when a tall hat and the most perfect and severe habit were the strictest essentials of riding in the Row. During the last year or two, however, a considerable relaxation has come over full riding dress, and a round straw hat, a covert coat, and a cotton shirt were often—indeed, most frequently—worn. The types and conditions of womenkind to be seen here are unending. The titled daughter of an M. P. H. is at her ease here just as she will be in the evening at a dance, or later on exchanging friendly greetings with her father's tenantry at the covert side. Her draywater in charge of the riding master and thinking that being on horseback is an over-estimated pleasure; here is the stout and heavy lady, who hopes that violent exercise upon a weight-carrier will allow her to have her dresses made an inch or two tighter in the waist, and there is the professional rider with a showy horse to sell. Yes, the Row is certainly the first place of "recreation" for women in London.

The last season has seen driving jump to a great height of favor among fashionable women. A smart pony and a little rattle cart are what they have chiefly affected, but it is dangerous to the safety of humbler citizens that every woman believes driving to be the easiest thing in the world. Only those who can and do drive well recognize how fine an art it is under any circumstances, and that in London it really requires a great amount of skill and nerve not to endanger either one's own life or that of other people's.

Compared with what it has done in the provinces, "cycling has made small progress in London as a lady's pastime. It is, however, now becoming more popular, as several well-known women are adopting it. Mrs. Hawley, among others, is an enthusiastic tricycleist, and can give many useful hints to other ladies about the wisdom of taking train out beyond dreary suburbs and reserving strength for long runs among the hills and pretty scenery which can be reached so easily from London.

It is certain that the prejudice which once existed regarding ladies riding a tricycle is fast dying out, and many women now who are leading sedentary lives in offices and schools look forward to a Saturday afternoon's "run" as a restorative and tonic after their week's work.

LANTERNS IN GERMANY.

They Were Formerly Used as Symbols of Rank.

The distinctions of rank which exist in European countries give rise to many troubles, though they may seem rather amusing as well as trivial to us, are in reality quite serious to the persons concerned in them. In Stuttgart, years ago, an exchange, there existed a curious custom which is not yet entirely abolished, and, in fact, still flourishes quite vigorously in some parts of Germany and Switzerland. This was the use of lanterns of different varieties and sizes, by which, at night, the rank of the party could be easily distinguished.

The lanterns were carried by the servants who were sent to escort their mistresses home from places of amusement, and they made the square in front of the Royal Opera-House, where most of the entertainments were then given, quite picturesque with their lights bobbing up and down in every direction.

The differences between some of these lanterns were slight, but they had to be strictly observed, or trouble arose. The order of rank, as set forth in the "rank list," was something from which could never swerve. Some had lanterns of tin, some of brass; some had wax lights, and others tallow; even the number of lights was prescribed for each separate class or rank.

An amusing story is told by Hacklander of two Stuttgart women, whose life-long friendship was nearly destroyed by the mistake of one of the husbands, who bought at an auction a lantern which could only be used with propriety by people of the next higher rank.

The servant polished the offending lantern, and took it with her the very next night when she went to meet her mistress at the close of an operatic entertainment. It was some time before the other woman, whose sense of the proprieties of life had been outraged, and who thought her old friend was endeavoring to lay claim to a rank above the one in which they both belonged, could be appeased. Even after the explanation, the subject of the lantern was always a sore one between them.

Opals from American Mines.

The discovery of paying opal mines in the new State of Washington near Moscow, Idaho, is one of the most important events connected with gem mining in the United States. While during the last half-century nearly all the known varieties of precious and semi-precious stones have been found in this country, says the Jeweler's Weekly, none of the more valuable kinds have been discovered in paying quantities. The Washington opal mines appear to contain treasures in large quantities, and it is likely that mining these gems will prove a profitable enterprise. The quality of the stones is said by those who have examined them to be good, and it is likely that American opals will in the near future be important features of the stocks of the leading jewelers of the country.

An Electric Tree-Feller.

In the forests of Galicia, Europe, an electrical tree-feller has been introduced with success. The saw is actuated by an electric motor, to which the current is conveyed by conducting wires from the nearest generating station. The whole apparatus is mounted on a chariot or cart, which is brought to the foot of the tree and placed in position. When a trunk is cut through far enough on one side, the cut is kept open by wedges, and the saw removed to the other side.

Steady Progress.

Has characterized Hood's Sarsaparilla ever since it was placed before the public. Wherever introduced, its sales have grown from year to year, until now it is the most popular and most successful medicine offered. Any secret of this success lies in the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a medicine of merit. It does actually accomplish all that is claimed for it, and when given a fair trial, is reasonably certain to be of benefit.

Positive Statements.

"Since Hood's Sarsaparilla has been in my hands for sale I have had frequent and unreserved testimonials in its favor. Although carrying this preparation for less than one year, my sales have been greater than of any similar preparation, and the testimonials in its favor are at once positive and personally noticeable." A. Wagner, Haledburg, Cal.

Sells On Its Merits.

"My boys say, 'Papa, why don't you buy more of Hood's Sarsaparilla at a time? We are always short.' It sells on its own merits." F. East, Portland, Oregon; the oldest druggist in Oregon.

HE MARCHED WITH SHERMAN,
trudged all the way on foot, over mountain and through forests, carrying knapsack and gun, slept on brush heaps to keep out of the mud, caught cold, from the effects of which his friends thought he would never recover. Lingered with slow consumption for many years, he saw Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery advertised in a country newspaper, and he determined to try it. A few bottles worked a change; six months continued use cured him. Always too independent to ask his country for a pension, he now says he saved himself! Consumption is Lung-scurf. For scurfs, in all its myriad forms, the "Discovery" is an unequalled remedy. It cleanses the system of all blood-poisons from whatever cause arising, and cures all Skin and Scalp Diseases, Scirrhus, Tetters, Eczema, and kindred ailments. It is guaranteed to benefit or cure in all diseases for which it is recommended, or money paid for it will be refunded. Sold by druggists.

Reno Chapter No. 7, R. A. M.
THE STATED CONVOCACTIONS OF RENO Chapter No. 7, R. A. M., are held at Masonic Hall on the evening of the first Thursday of each month, commencing at 8 o'clock sharp. All sojourning companions in good standing are fraternally invited to attend. By order of E. H. F. W. L. BUCHHEIM, Secretary.

There he lies in regal state,
Peeping in at childhood's gate,
Opening wide his azure eyes,
Full of wonder and surprise;
Though the tenderest, sweetest thing,
Yet he reigns a very king—
Clad in garments of the best,
He will take his royal rest!

Softest lawn, and richest lace,
Flutters round his dimpled face,
Drapes his white and baby arm—
Not a fly must do him harm,
Not a willful foot must tread
Heavily about his bed;
Not a whisper—scarcely a breath;
Let the house be still as death.

He is up! Our embryo king:
Get his rattle—get his ring:
Do his bidding, father, mother,
Aunt and uncle, sister, brother;
Let him feed, our youthful Hector
On the richest, sweetest nectar;
Let him not a moment wait,
All his wants anticipate.

When "our baby" grows a man—
Realize it if you can—
He will pay us more than double
For our daily care and trouble;
"May he not" is a voice unkind
Whispers rudely. Never mind;
Kiss our darling in his nest—
Let us hope, and for the best.

—Mrs. M. A. Kidder, in N. Y. Weekly.

THE RUSSET APPLES.

How They Helped to End Addy Walters' Trials.

A late March twilight, with a bitter frost in the air, the new moon just dipping its golden horn behind the maple swamp in the west, and the ground sounding crisply under foot. We had just come in from foddering the cattle—"we" sounds rather singularly when you reflect that it meant Kitty and I, two girls of seventeen and nineteen; but you see there wasn't any one else to do it. Father had been bedridden ever since that last attack of paralysis, and we could afford to hire no one to take his place about the farm.

"I don't pity them gals," Neighbor Dyson said. "They might sell the horse and cow."

Neighbor Dyson had generously offered us something less than half price for them, thinking, no doubt, that we would be thankful to jump at the chance. But Kitty and I, after taking the matter into consideration, thanked him, and declined politely.

"We couldn't keep house without old Mooley, could we, Addy?" said my sister. "There are so many nice dishes we can make for poor father, if we have plenty of good, rich milk and cream."

And the butter that we should have to buy at Neighbor Dyson's city prices would go far to counterbalance the money we should get for Mooley.

"And as for the horse," said I, "the cats but a little, and how on earth could we get around the country, even to the post-office, such weather as this, if it wasn't for old Dobbin, that we have had ever since I can remember."

So it happened that on this special March evening we had just come in from attending to the wants of our live stock.

I was in great spirits, playing with pussy, who came to meet us with her plump tail erect; but Kitty leaned sadly against the wooden mantle and looked into the fire with mournful eyes.

"Kitty," cried I, at last, "what does make you so dull?"

"To-morrow is the 3d of March," said she, gravely.

"What of that?" I demanded.

"Don't you remember? The interest on the mortgage comes due to-morrow."

"So it does," said I, my radiant face falling faster than the thermometer on a freezing day. "Thirty-five dollars! And we have nothing to pay it with except the fifteen dollars Laura Osgood paid for the old melodeon."

"Perhaps Willis Avery would wait," suggested Kitty.

I drew myself up, slightly.

"I don't choose to ask him to wait," said I.

Now, it happened that Willis Avery, who held the mortgage on our home, was the son of a neighbor and an old playfellow and boy-beau of my own, who had gone to the prosperous young city a few miles north of us and commenced business on his own account, and I had a particular aversion to asking aid or help of him in any way. I might be poor, but I was also proud, and Kitty was quite sympathetic enough to understand me.

"But, then, what are we to do?" said Kitty.

I sat down on the hearth rug, with my chin in my hands, and stared earnestly at the big crackling black log. Pussy crept away and nestled down in the corner, as if she knew by instinct that there was a change of temperature.

"Look here, Kitty," said I, suddenly. "Those russet apples!"

"We can sell them. There are eight barrels at the least. Eight barrels at two dollars and fifty cents a barrel—"

"My dear Addy, no one will buy them at one-fifth the price. Apples are a drug in the market."

"Here, I grant you, but not in the city. I will take them to Mapleton and sell them."

"Why isn't it, I should like to know, so long as a woman can do it. At all events, a woman must pay her debts; so if you'll hurry up the tea I'll be off to the barn."

"And what shall we tell papa?"

"Oh! he'll think I've gone to singing-school with the Dyson girls, and I don't think it's a Christian duty to undeceive him," answered I.

But notwithstanding the brave face I put upon affairs, my heart quivered a little the next day as I drove off toward Mapleton, with the scarlet stain of sunrise dyeing all the east, and my own cheeks flushed with the keen morning air.

But it wasn't so bad, after all. With pardonable egotism, I supposed that every one would be staring at me; but on the contrary, a young woman selling apples might be the commonest sight in the world, so little comment or surprise did it apparently excite. Mr. Holloway, of the firm of Holloway Brothers, produce and commission merchants, didn't want any apples I speedily learned.

"Just bought a shipload from Albany," said he, as carelessly as if shiploads of apples were as common a purchase as ten cents' worth of tea. And I drove on, beginning to feel infinitesimally small.

Mr. Lovejoy could give me one dollar a barrel. "Apples wasn't worth no more at this season of the year!" And I whipped old Dobbin up, determined to carry them home again, sooner than sell at that price.

At the next place where I stopped a pleasant-looking, middle-aged man came out and critically examined my apples.

"Do they hold out like this all the way down?" he asked.

"I'll warrant them," said I, carelessly.

"How much?" he asked.

"Two dollars and a half a barrel," he reflected.

"It's a good price," said he, as if he were talking to his own vest buttons; "but then they look like good apples, and we've a tolerably large Western order to fill. I'll see what my partner thinks."

He went back into the gloomy depths of his store, and I, happening to glance up, saw the words painted in black letters over the door: "Hull & Avery."

My first impulse was to drive on and leave the chance of a bargain behind me; my next to sit still and await my fate as Providence dealt it out to me. And presently out came Willis Avery himself.

"I think we will take your load if—why?" breaking short off, "it's Addy Walters!"

I colored scarlet.

"Yes," said I, as composedly as possible. "Good morning, Mr. Avery. I shall be obliged to you if you will examine the fruit as speedily as possible, as I am in a hurry."

"Oh, certainly." He looked as if a nipping frost had chilled his enthusiasm in the bud, and I secretly exulted within myself.

Mr. Hull bought the load of apples, and said if I had any more at the same price—and of the same quality, he cautiously added—he would be happy to take them. Willis Avery touched his hat, and I drove away as loftily as Queen Boadicea in her chariot of old.

"Just $35, counting in the melodeon money," cried Kitty, gleefully. "And now Mr. Avery may come as soon as he likes!"

She had scarcely spoken the words before there came a knock at the door, and in walked no less a personage than Mr. Willis Avery himself. I received him with the air of an empress.

"Your money is ready, Mr. Avery."

"I was not thinking of the money, Addy," said he, almost reproachfully. "Do you think one's mind runs always on money?"

"Mine does, a good deal," said I, laughing.

"But I had no idea you were reduced to this. I did not know—"

"Mr. Avery, this is scarcely business-like," I interposed.

"Addy," said he, abruptly, "I admired your spirit and courage to-day. I always liked you as a girl, but now—"

"Well?" for he hesitated.

"I would do something more, if you would let me. I would love you!"

I did not answer. In truth and in fact, I could not.

"Dear Addy, will you let me sign back the old place to your father on our wedding day?" he asked earnestly.

And somehow he had got hold of my hand, and somehow, before I knew it, we were engaged.

"This is all very ridiculous of us," said I, "particularly as I have resolved never to marry since we had that quarrel about my dancing with Gerald Ferguson at the fourth of July picnic."

"I'll promise you never to be jealous again," said Willis Avery.

Kitty was jubilant when she heard it all.

"Our troubles are at an end," said she, "and all because you would take that load of russet apples to town yourself."

"That doesn't follow," said I, sagely.

But for all my philosophy I did believe a little in fate, and I've always liked russet apples since—Chicago News.

A matter-of-fact postmaster in a small town in Arkansas recently wrote to the Post-Office Department stating that one of the citizens had recently entered the office armed with a Winchester rifle, and pointed it at the postmaster in a threatening manner. He closed his telegram with the words: "Send instructions." Colonel Whitfield, the First Assistant, tersely replied by quoting the words of the well-known refrain: "Johnny, get your gun."
